Dear Joryfeller

These are the days—days filled with wide-eyed wonder, pockets of magic, growth spurts, and endearing milestones. From first steps to first friendships, mini adventures to mishaps, these are the days you'll never want to forget. And most likely, they will also be filled with some tears, some unwieldy emotions, and times when you'll sink into bed at the end (or middle) of the day and marvel at all the energy it takes to raise a human being. For all your outpouring, thank you. You are doing something breathtaking. You are doing something extraordinary.

We made this book so you'll always remember how remarkable these days have been.

And because we want the experience of this book to feel like a gift, we made it simple and straightforward. You'll find easy prompts and designated spots for Everyday Prints. You'll see space to write your child a letter once a year, and an envelope in the back where you can store little sentimentals that you collect along the way...like birthday cards, zoo tickets, or that scrap of paper where your little one first wrote their name.

We've also housed everything in a binder, so you can shuffle pages around if you'd like, add your own pages (just use a hole punch and line it up), or combine years that have already passed into a customized collection. In other words: make this book your own. Nothing here needs to be perfect. Coffee stains and imperfect scribbles are more than welcome—they're expected. Our hope is that you can simply embrace the life that is right in front of you.

So here's to the early years. Here's to the little one by your side. And here's to both the grand experiences and small, everyday moments ahead.
